Other Topics

(3) Development of Sanyo Ultra Refining Process (SURP)

- We have developed the Sanyo Ultra Refining Process (SURP), marking additional progress in Sanyo New Refining Process (SNRP).
- SNRP is a process that allows the mass production of high-quality ultra-high-cleanliness steel. It not only reduces the volume of inclusions, it also controls (reduces) the size of large inclusions.
- We found new ways to reduce the frequency of large inclusions by means of controlling their composition (type, quantity, and fraction of their trace components).
- We have developed SURP, helping to reduce the frequency of large non-metallic inclusions by adding to the inclusioncontrol technology of SNRP.
- We expect that applying this technology to bearings and other rotating parts for high-speed rail train components, wind turbines, and industrial equipment, which involve heavy loads that require stable operation in extreme, severe lubrication environments enables to respond to needs for higher reliability and maintenance-free operation.
